ARTICLE 37 – NEW TECHNOLOGICAL CHANGE

37.01 Definition

The introduction of equipment, material or processes different from that previously used that affects one or more employees.

- (a) The introduction of equipment or material of a different nature or kind than that previously utilized.
- (b) A change in the work, undertaking or business carried on by the employer that is directly related to that equipment or material, including the removal of any part of the work, undertaking or business.

37.02 Advance Notice

When the employer is considering the introduction of technological change:

- (a) The employer will notify the union as far as possible in advance of its intentions and update the information provided as new developments arise and changes are made.
- (b) The foregoing notwithstanding, the employer shall provide the union at least one hundred and twenty (120) days before the introduction of technological change, with a detailed description of the changes it intends to implement, disclosing all foreseeable effects and repercussions on employees.

Notice mentioned in subsection (2) shall be in writing and shall state:

- (i) The nature of the technological change.
- (ii) The date upon which the employer proposes to effect the technological change.
- (iii) The number and type of employees likely to be affected by the technological change.
- (iv) The effects the change may be expected to have on employees' terms and conditions of employment.
- (v) Identify and provide the necessary training required for the technological change when possible.

37.03 Consultation

Technological change shall be introduced only after the union and the employer have consulted and have reviewed the technological change and the possible effects of the change on employees and the application of provisions of this collective agreement. Upon written notice, the employer and the union may commence collective bargaining for the purpose of revising the existing provisions or including new provisions in this collective agreement to assist the employees affected by the change.

37.04 Arbitration

If, as it affects the technological change, the employer and the union disagree on the application of the collective agreement, the matter shall be referred to the arbitration procedure.

37.05 Transfer Arrangements

An employee whose job is rendered redundant and is displaced from their job as a result of the technological change shall be given an opportunity to fill any vacancy for which they have the seniority and which they have sufficient qualifications. If there is no vacancy, they shall have the right to displace employees with less seniority, provided they have sufficient qualifications to perform the job.

37.06 Training Benefits

Notwithstanding the above, where an employee is not displaced and where new or greater skills are required than are already possessed by affected employees using current technology, the employee shall, at the expense of the employer, be given a reasonable period of time not to exceed six (6) months, during which they may perfect or acquire the skills necessitated by the technological change.

37.07 Additional Training

Subject to the above, should the introduction of a technological change create a need for the perfection or acquisition of skills requiring a training period of longer than six (6) months, the additional training time may be provided if it is not economically prohibitive.

37.08 New Classification

All new classifications or positions created as a result of technological change or current job classifications which are changed as a result of technological change shall be automatically included in the bargaining unit unless the union and the employer mutually agree to exclude them.
