Despite promising not to privatize public services, the Brad Wall government has moved forward with a stealth campaign to privatize more precious public services, including health care.

The move to privatize hospital laundry in Yorkton means that over 40 community members will be affected either by being laid off, having to change jobs, or moving to other communities.

We need to invest in public solutions for health care. This includes more resources for long term care to re-open the 65 long term care beds we lost in the past four years.

Health care does not belong to any politician, government or political party – it belongs to us, the people.
