

CUPE is actively recruiting qualified candidates to work as National Representatives across the country.

Interested?

Go to cupe.ca/jobs to fill out and submit your application.

Want to become a CUPE National Rep?

Do you want to:

- Advance the working conditions of CUPE members?
- Negotiate improvements to collective agreements?
- Uphold collective agreement rights through the grievance and arbitration process?

Are you:

- Logical, analytical and skilled at problem solving?
- Committed to fairness and social justice?
- A leader?

Do you have:

- The ability to build positive working relationships?
- The ability to analyze and apply collective agreement language?
- Excellent communication skills, sound judgement, and a positive attitude?
- Conflict management and resolution skills?
- General knowledge of labour legislation?
- Knowledge of CUPE's structure, constitution, policies and objectives?
- The ability to draft contract language?

As part of our commitment to employment equity, CUPE encourages applications from qualified members of five designated groups: women, Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, racialized people and LGBTQ2+ people. Accommodations are available on request for candidates taking part in all aspects of the selection process.

For more about CUPE

and the work of National Representatives, visit cupe.ca/jobs